

Douglas Gichuki

Douglas Gichuki holds an LLB degree from the Catholic University of Eastern Africa (CUEA) in Nairobi, and an LLM (in Information Law and IP) from Norwich Law School, University of East Anglia, UK. He is an Advocate of the High Court of Kenya. He heads the Intellectual Property department at Muma and Kanjama advocates. Gichuki is a program director for the IT law programme at the Centre of Intellectual Property and Information Technology Law (CIPIT) at Strathmore law School. He has been a recipient of a research fellowship at Open A.I.R.'s South African Hub in the IP unit at the University of Capetown . He is also a law lecturer at Strathmore and a doctoral prospective candidate the University of Capetown. At SLS Gichuki teaches legal Systems and Methods, Criminal Procedure and IT and Internet law. His core research interests centre around the intersections of law and technology specifically internet architecture and innovation, privacy, cyber-crime, telecommunications regulation.